5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Before we make a decision, we should consider all the facts and take our time to think about the options carefully, in fact there are many factors that influence the decision -making process.

Human nature affects decision-making, if we had the choice, we would prefer to avoid pain rather than gain something. Physical factors also affect our decision making. Stress is another factor which affects our decision .Researchers have proved that men tend to make riskier choices than women. Every day, we have to make countless decisions .Each decision, no matter how unimportant, makes our brain more tired. This means we are much more likely to make decisions that we regret at the end of the day.

C Reading

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

For centuries, people lived with and respected the all-powerful crocodile. Those snapping jaws and lethal teeth frightened all attackers away, whether human or animal. People were also fascinated by their characteristic calls, their beauty and their intelligence. Unfortunately, it was their beautiful skin which put them under threat. When explorers realized how valuable crocodile skin was, everything changed. Hunters risked their lives –and sometimes lost them-in order to satisfy the world's demand for crocodile skin. The crocodiles' homes began to disappear as towns and industries were developed on the land near swamps and rivers . Luckily for the crocodiles, people realized that a world without them would just not be the same, and now they have been officially declared an endangered species. In some parts of the world, there are now parks with industrial rivers where crocodiles can live safely to bring up their young, with strict laws to protect them.

6) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Although schoolchildren often complain that school is boring and a waste of time, I think this is an exaggeration. In my point of view, the majority of the things we are taught at school are useful to us in manyways. In the first place, school gives you general knowledge which helps in your everyday life. My own experience has shown me that knowledge of subjects such as Geography and History, for instance, helps to understand what is happening in the world around us. Without this "background" knowledge, the information in newspaper reports, TV documentaries and so on would mean very little to me. Furthermore, some school subjects help you develop an interest in hobbies like P.E and scientific research. In my case. I like to spend my free time surfing the internet. I would have found this much harder to do if I hadn't had computer studies at school.

A- Answer the following questions:

C Reading

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Children’s stories are popular among the young and the old because in them you can almost differentiate between the good and the bad people. A character like Snow White is good, where as her stepmother is evil. Also in children’s stories, justice always wins and evil loses .In another story,"The wicked witch" is defeated and the beautiful little girl goes home safely.That’s why children find any other kind of stories unbelievable.They simply cannot understand how evil can go unpunished or good unrewarded. As they grow up, they realise that life is not that simple. People have both good and bad qualities, and justice does not always win. If a story does not take this into account, we may think of it as boring or childish. To make a reader a little sad is much better than to deceive him or her.

A- Answer the following questions:

1) What do children realise about life when they grow up?

2) In your opinion what are the best children's stories?

.....

3) Why don't children believe stories where justice loses?

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

The sun was high in the sky and the rays shone directly on a bare piece of ground in the forest. In the centre of this bare spot there was something that looked like a large stone; it was a tiger. The tiger lay quite still. It was no longer able to attack the deer that were so easy to kill when it was young. They moved too quickly for it now. In order that it might live, it found itself forced to hunt the weakest animal of all, namely man. In other words, the tiger became a man-eater. It would wait impatiently near the stream until some unfortunate woman came near enough for it. When the men of the village arrived at the scene of the killing, the tiger was far away .

People began to talk about it. Some of them made efforts to find it, but in vain. The tiger's habit of never going to the same place where it had once killed made it very difficult to know where it was. Tricks of all kinds were tried. Traps were cleverly laid but the tiger escaped them all .

One morning the people of the village were surprised. They found the tiger lying dead near the lake. The villagers discovered that the old tiger had a fight at night with a big buffalo.

C Reading

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

It is true that men have invented a lot of useful things; the alphabet, machines, rockets and so many other things. But scientists and archaeologists now agree that women invented one very important thing which has changed history. They invented agriculture. Before the invention of agriculture, men were hunters. They went out every day. Sometimes they killed animals, sometimes animals killed them. Life was difficult and dangerous. Women had to go out every day too. They collected roots, fruit and grass. One day, more than 10,000 years ago, a woman dropped some grass seeds. She dropped them near her home. They grew and the first wheat was born. The idea grew, too. Women planted roots and fruit trees. Then they could stay at home and look after their children and their animals. Archaeologists think that women kept the first domestic animals. Then their husbands did not have to go hunting for meat. They stayed at home. They built villages and cities. Civilization began. Men began civilization after women had invented agriculture.

6) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Successful marriage is the most effective form of social support; it relieves the effects of stress, and leads to better mental and physical health. While many studies have shown the great importance of social support, it is still clear exactly what this means. Most likely it consists of being a sympathetic listener or offering helpful advice; providing emotional support and social acceptance; giving actual help or financial help, and simply doing ordinary things together, like eating and drinking. Husbands seem to benefit much more from marriage than wives do. Married women are in better physical and mental health, and are happier than single women, but these effects are nearly twice as great for men. Various explanations have been considered, but the most plausible is that wives provide more social support than husbands. Perhaps men need it more? They are more exposed to stresses at work, and have worse health, and die earlier than women.

A- Answer the following questions:

1) How effective is successful marriage from the social point of view?

2) Why are men in need of more social support than women?

3) In what aspect did married women excel single ones?

C Reading

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Plants make most food people eat. They grow almost everywhere on our planet. Their parts include roots, stem, and leaves. The root takes in water and nutrients from the soil. The stem carries water and nutrients from the roots to the other parts. The leaves take the nutrients and light. All plants produce flowers to make seeds so another plant can grow. Plants need energy to grow, replace damaged cells, get rid of waste, and reproduce. Photosynthesis is the process by which plants make food. In this process, carbon dioxide and water combine in the presence of light to form food. Plants convert energy from the sun by absorbing it through their leaves. Chlorophyll, the green colour found in plants, helps plants, make food. During photosynthesis, leaves use light and energy to change carbon dioxide and water into food, and then oxygen is released into the air.

Taha Hussein was not born blind. He lost his sight after having the wrong medicine. So, he received special treatment from his parents but he sometimes felt that his parents didn't care about him. When he was a very little boy, he didn't understand the reason for this but soon he found out. His brothers and sisters could do many things that he couldn't do of course because they saw but he did not. This made him sit alone most of time.

All these experiences stirred him to use his mind more and pushed him to try discovering things by himself, but this put him into many troubles. One day, something happened that changed his life and made him quite shy. It came to his mind to eat with both hands instead of one. As soon as he tried to do so, his sisters and brothers roared with laughter but his father sadly said: "That is not the way to eat, son "

C Reading

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Flowers produce a fine powder called pollen, which is carried by the wind or by insects to other flowers of the same type so that they can produce seeds. Pollination, the carrying of pollen from one flower to another, is necessary for the reproduction of plants and for the production of food. Scientists estimate that one third of our food depends on insects, mostly bees, for pollination. However, in recent years, there has been a big drop in the populations of pollinators worldwide. There are several reasons. The use of pesticides has had the side effect of killing pollinators. Air pollution prevents insects from smelling and finding flowers, which they need for food. Diseases are killing many insects. Growing cities are destroying the environments where pollinators live. Recently, shortages of fruit and vegetables in India were blamed on the loss of pollinators. Clearly, it is important that we find solutions quickly.

6) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Most students find university very different from school. One of the biggest differences is that university students are expected to manage their time themselves. Although staff will help, it is the students' responsibility to be in the right place at the right time and to hand homework in on time. The way teaching is organised is also very different from school. At university, lectures teach classes that may last two or three hours and can include 300 – 400 students. There are usually other smaller classes where students can discuss subjects they find difficult, and from time to time lectures spend time with individual students, talking about work they have done. If students are not living at home while they are at university, there are many ordinary things they may have to do for themselves, such as cooking.

I was looking forward to meeting my friend John again. When he had written to me to say that he was coming to Egypt on business, I had promised to meet him at the airport. It never entered my head that I might not recognize him after twenty years. I still kept a clear picture in my mind of a tall fellow, with clear, blue eyes and fair, curly hair. The arrival of John flight was announced. I waited outside the customs hall as the passengers went by – businessmen in smart suits, a man with a wooden leg, leaning on a stick, young people with long hair, dressed in jeans and shirts. There was no sign of John. I went to the entrance of the customs hall and looked inside. The only person there, apart from the customs officers, was a big man of about fifty wearing dark glasses, with a bald head and a moustache. He came towards me and stopped in front of me. 5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Flowers produce a fine powder called pollen, which There is increasing evidence that the impacts of meteorites have had important effects on Earth, particularly in the field of biological evolution. Such impacts continue to create natural dangers to life on Earth. Twice in the twentieth century, large meteorite objects are known to have collided with Earth. If an impact is large enough, it can disturb the environment of the entire Earth and cause an ecological catastrophe. The best- documented such impact took place 65million years ago at the end of the Cretaceous period of geological history. This break in Earth's history is marked by a mass extinction, when as many as half the species on the planet became extinct. While there is a dozen or more mass extinctions in the geological record, the Cretaceous mass extinction has always intrigued paleontologists because it marks the end of the age of the dinosaurs. 5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Today, many people use natural ways to cure illnesses that don't cause side effects. "Acupuncture" and "biofeedback" are two popular methods. Doctors have been using acupuncture in China for over two thousand years. It involves pushing needles into the skin at special points around the body. Ancient Chinese philosophers believed that they were connected to different organs and could cure diseases. Today, "acupuncture" is used in many countries, and studies show that it works especially for headaches, backaches and smoking. Since the 1950s, doctors in China have also been using acupuncture in major operations. Patients are awake and know what is happening in the operation but they feel little or no pain. Scientists think that the needles make the body produce a chemical called "endorphin" that helps to reduce the feeling of pain. Another natural way to cure illnesses is "biofeedback". It uses technology to help people control their internal organs. For example, if a person has problems with sleeping, he/she is connected to a special computer that shows the activity of the brain. The person then is asked to do some mental exercises to relax. When the brain activity falls and the person is relaxed, the computer makes a noise. Slowly, the person learns what type of mental exercises can help him/her to reduce the activity of the brain.

Robots are capable of performing various complex tasks some of them include assembling cars in factories and helping with medical procedures. In spite of having these advanced functions, they still do not have personalities. However, this could change in the near future. At present, a group of engineers, scientists and psychologists from all over Europe are starting a project to develop robots with personalities. The scientists believe that as robots become more guaranteed and play a greater role in society, they will need to be able to deal with humans. It is planned that robots will be able to help around the house, act as companions, shop on line and help the elderly people interact with everyday problems. There is no aspect of life that robots will not affect. People have been wearing clothes for thousands of years, but we are not absolutely certain why prehistoric man first did so. There must have been various reasons. Clothing was needed for protection from the weather and perhaps from injury while hunting. A less practical reason was for decoration. An early myth suggests that people first covered their bodies for reasons of modesty. Today, experts say that clothing is a kind of language. We often put on clothes and accessories to show what kind of people we are. From what people wear we can often tell their age, whether they are male or female, where they come from, their religious beliefs, whether they are married, what their jobs are, what sports they do, and how rich or powerful they are.

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Flowers produce a fine powder called pollen, which is carried by the wind or by insects to other flowers of the same type so that they can produce seeds. Pollination, the carrying of pollen from one flower to another, is necessary for the reproduction of plants and for the production of food. Scientists estimate that one third of our food depends on insects, mostly bees, for pollination. But in recent years, there has been a big drop in the populations of pollinators worldwide. There are several reasons. The use of pesticides has had the side effect of killing pollinators. Air pollution prevents insects from smelling and finding flowers, which they need for food. Diseases are killing many insects. Growing cities are destroying the environments where pollinators live. Recently, shortages of fruit and vegetables in India were blamed on the loss of pollinators. Clearly, it is important that we find solutions quickly.

C Reading

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

The ancient Egyptians are among the first early civilizations to learn how to grow roses. In 1888, two-thousand-year-old roses were found in ancient Egyptian graves. The discovery suggested roses were an important part of the burial ceremonies, which took place when an important person died. The roses found in the tombs are thought to be the oldest preserved flowers ever found in the entire world. They must have been cut and dried before opening to remain undamaged. On careful examination, it was discovered that the petals themselves were hardly damaged .

Egypt's expertise in mass-cultivation of roses in early times led to the flowers becoming an important export product. At the height of the Roman Empire, Egypt exported enormous quantities of the blooms to the Roman courts. Wealthy Romans loved to indulge in the beautiful colours and smells of roses and they would strew the floors of their main halls with layers of rose petals.

6) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

As cities become more crowded, workers often have to move farther away from their offices to find affordable housing in desirable neighborhoods. Sometimes they have to commute, that is to travel an hour or more to work and back, and endure heavy traffic. One popular solution to the difficult daily travel is telecommuting, which involves working from home and communicating with one's employer by phone, fax, or e-mail. Changing technology makes telecommuting increasingly easy and popular. Some people work at home full time, while others go into the office one or two days and work at home the rest of the week. Telecommuting has many advantages. Besides saving people from the stressful traffic, it allows for more flexibility in the workplace. Telecommuters can plan their own timetables; and they can work from anywhere. Often, people with children like to telecommute because it means building a work plan around family demands and duties.

A- Answer the following questions:

C Reading

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Flowers produce a fine powder called pollen, which is carried by the wind or by insects to other flowers of the same type so that they can produce seeds. Pollination, the carrying of pollen from one flower to another, is necessary for the reproduction of plants and for the production of food. Scientists estimate that one third of our food depends on insects, mostly bees, for pollination. But in recent years, there has been a big drop in the populations of pollinators worldwide. There are several reasons. The use of pesticides has had the side effect of killing pollinators. Air pollution prevents insects from smelling and finding flowers, which they need for food . Diseases are killing many insects. Growing cities are destroying the environments where pollinators live. Recently, shortages of fruit and vegetables in India were blamed on the loss of pollinators. Clearly, it is important that we find solutions quickly.

A- Answer the following questions:

1) What is a pollinator?

C Reading

5) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

People may be divided into two types: winners and losers. Because our families and friends have a great influence on us as we grow, we are born helpless and dependent on our environment. Winners are able to change their situation and become independent by being responsible for their own lives. They don't blame others for their mistakes. They do their own thinking, they listen to others, evaluate what they say, and then they make up their minds. Although they may fail at times, yet they keep self-confidence. Winners overcome their bad experiences. They enjoy work, play, food and the world of nature.

They freely enjoy themselves but they can postpone it if duty calls. Losers, on the other hand never learn to take responsibility for their own lives. There are many causes why people can become losers: disease, poor nutrition, cruelty, unhappy relationships and Bad experiences.

These can interfere with the normal progress towards becoming a winner. But whereas winners fight these situations, losers hang on to them, and use them as excuses. Losers usually feel anxious, unhappy and bored. They are afraid to try new things and often repeat their own mistakes again and again. Losers spend their lives waiting for something wonderful to happen to save them from their problems with their lives but never try to change.

A- Answer the following questions:

c. learn to take responsibility d. try to change

6) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Scientists believe that there is a number of reasons for climatic changes. One reason could be the changes in the amount of heat which actually comes from the sun at different times. Another could be volcanic dust. People have also been adding gases such as carbon dioxide to the atmosphere. These are called greenhouses because they hang in the atmosphere around the Earth like the roof and walls of a greenhouse. The Earth receives heat and light from the sun sends this back into space as infrared radiation. Much of this radiation cannot pass through the greenhouse gases and this causes increased temperatures near the Earth. The amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is increasing mainly because all countries burn fossil fuels such as oil, natural gas and coal. The destruction of the big rain forests, which absorb carbon dioxide and give out oxygen, makes matters worse. What can be done to prevent this situation? Global warming is a problem that affects every country and every person in the world. First of all, all governments must agree to stop the destruction of the world's rain forests. Secondly, they must agree to reduce the amount of carbon dioxide that transport and industries emit into the atmosphere. And we can all play a part as individuals. We should all try to reduce the amount of carbon dioxide we emit into the atmosphere. This can be done by driving fuel- efficient cars. The best way people can help is to use public transport as much as possible instead of their cars. And finally, we should plant more trees in the cities and on farms to give us back the air we need.

In fact, depending on computer technology continues to grow every day. We seem to use computers for almost everything these days; in shopping, driving our cars; or communicating with relatives and colleagues. This explosion in computer technology has resulted in a rush to install computers in every classroom and to "wire" every school to the internet. In the USA, between 1984 and 1997 alone, the number of computers in secondary schools increased to more than 8 million units. Both educators and students alike have been forced to keep up with this new wave of technology. Teachers have found that even though they themselves are still trying to learn the most basic computer skills. They are expected to teach students about computer know-how. Few people would question the role that computers could play in education. Some educators claim that students, given the opportunity to use them in a classroom setting, will get better grades than those who learn without having had any computer experience. These people say that just as computer technology has improved the way cars work, computers will make the classroom a better place to teach concepts and ideas that students need to become brighter, more successful adults.
