Life in ancient times lacked the tools of technology that man knew in modern times, so people's lives were difficult and difficult in many ways. In traveling, people traveled from country to country using camels, and at home people used simple primitive tools to set fire to the food. . In today's world, people are competing in the use of technology in all aspects of their private and public life. In people's homes you find most tools that make it easier for people to live and get away from hardship and fatigue, shorten time, effort and money. From one place to another thousands of miles away in a few hours the modern era, communication tools have evolved in the modern age, where people connect without hindrances, time barriers, or space, thanks to the web that connected people to each other. And allowed them to communicate in all its forms of visual, audio and written. The difference between the customs and traditions of the people and their traditions in the present era. This difference has caused the world to become a small village where everyone is influenced by the beliefs and ideas of the other easier than previously, and communities could close themselves and retain their social and cultural heritage,
