Read the following text:

Very few professions today offer such a range of specialities and career paths as nursing, but it involves hard work and demands commitment. What a qualified nurse focuses on is the patient, not simply the condition he or she may be suffering from but the needs and anxieties it may generate, including the pressures on family and friends. The place you work in may be a hospital ward or clinic. The area you specialise in could be intensive care, theatre and recovery, cancer care or care of older people, or it could be visiting people at home or attached to a local health centre. What makes nursing such a challenge is the diversity of situations you will have to respond to. The patients you will be working with may be old or young, with chronic illnesses or acute illnesses and injuries. The team you will be part of includes doctors, physiotherapists, anaesthetists, pharmacists, dieticians and others. It is a demanding job with serious responsibilities. In return, you have the satisfaction of knowing that you make a real difference in reducing suffering and promoting the health of people in your care.

Exercise 1: True/False Statements

For each of the statements below, choose True or False.

- A nurse must concentrate only on the patient's illness. ( )
- Nursing requires a high level of dedication. ( )
- There many areas a nurse can specialise in. ( )
- In a hospital the theatre is where surgical operations are done. ( )
- Nurses always work in the same place. ( )
- A chronic illness is a medical condition that lasts over a long period of time. ( )
- An acute illness is one that is brief, severe and quickly comes to a crisis. ( )
- A nurse does not need to be able to work in a team. ( )

Exercise 2: Exposed Cloze

Use the correct word or expression from the list below to fill in the gaps in the sentences.

acute - chronic – commitment – dietician – theatre

- 1-She is very well qualified, but I don't think she has much..... to her work.
- 2-The patient had suffered from.....arthritis for a long time.
- 3-The.....told him to lose weight.
- 4-She was suffering from.....appendicitis.
- 5-She was taken to the.....for an appendectomy.

Exercise 3: Transformation

Fill in the gap in sentence B so that it means the same as sentence A.

Explanation:

Omission of the Conjunction 'that' and of Relative Pronouns.

The conjunction 'that' is often omitted in English, especially in short simple sentences. For example:

The doctor said that it was urgent. The doctor said it was urgent.

The Relative Pronouns WHO and WHOM (people), WHICH (things) and THAT (people or things) can also be omitted:

- a. if they are the object of the verb in the subordinate clause.

For example:

- Em • The book (which/that) I bought yesterday is very good.
- The patient (whom/that) she treated was suffering from bronchitis.

a. if they are used after a preposition. In this case the preposition is placed at the end of the subordinate clause.

For example:

- The book about which I told you is very good. ---> The book I told you about is very good.
- The doctor with whom she works is very strict. ---> The doctor she works with is very strict.

(Note: the relative pronoun 'that' cannot be used after a preposition).

1-A. A nurse must focus on the patient, not just the condition from which the patient is suffering.

B. A nurse must focus on the patient, not just the condition the patient is suffering.....

2-A. The place in which you work may be a hospital ward or a clinic.

B. The place you work.....may be a hospital ward or a clinic.

3-A. The area you specialise in could be intensive care or theatre work.

after - baby - broken - children - closely - injury - minds – over - scared
share

Children's Nursing can take you from intensive care of a new-born.....with breathing problems to looking after a six-foot-tall adolescent whose leg has been.....in a soccer match. Children are not just mini-adults: their bodies and.....work in different ways. The onset of symptoms can be sudden and extreme. Because.....are still growing, the impact of the illness or.....on their development has to be taken into account, and because they are young they may be more .....or confused by what is happening to them. Children have parents and brothers and sisters who are all involved in different ways. Children's Nurses work .....with patients' families as part of the caring process and often.....their nursing skills with the child's parents or whoever would normally look.....them at home. Your job is to give the child's carers the confidence and ability to carry on with their caring role, knowing when to stand back and when to take.....if necessary.

Blind Student Enters Nursing Program

Melissa Resnick has been blind since birth. She has always dreamed of becoming a nurse, and now with the help of the National Federation of the Blind she will have her chance at Nassau Community College in Garden City, N.Y.

Marc Maurer, President of NFB, hopes that Ms. Resnick will inspire other young blind men and women to aspire to become nurses. The NFB helped Ms. Resnick by providing information on how other non-sighted individuals have used alternative measures and techniques to complete their medical or other healthcare studies. Nassau considered their reports and admitted Ms. Resnick. She began her studies in January 2005.

Melissa already holds a Bachelor's Degree in biology from the State University of New York at Albany. Although the university tried to discourage her from such a program because of her sight issues, Melissa proved she could not only succeed, but she graduated with honors. She went on to obtain her Master's degree in biopsychology for Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Now she will pursue her dream of becoming a nurse. "It has been my lifelong dream to become a nurse and I have worked very hard to get here," said Melissa Resnick. "I purposely took difficult courses in school and volunteered at a hospital just to be overqualified for nursing school. I am confident that I will succeed and I thank Nassau Community College for giving me this opportunity."

Read the following text:

The School of Nursing offers approximately 350 places a year in the specialities of adult, child, learning disability and mental health nursing. The School is multi-sited and has teaching facilities in all the district general hospitals it uses for practical experience, so that while some of the academic components of your nursing programme are based in the school's central facilities, you will also be able to follow your studies closer to where you undertake your practice.

The current Diploma programme is full-time (45 weeks per year), organised over three years with almost equal hours spent in theoretical study and on practical experience. The first eighteen months is common to all students. This is followed by specialisation in your chosen branch of nursing. You are allowed two attempts to achieve the required standard of theory and of practice in each module. On successful completion of the programme, you will be eligible to register as a nurse and will be awarded the Diploma in Higher Education (Nursing Studies). Entry Requirements: Please contact the College for details.

Famous Amos Cookies

By: Sue Peterson

Wallace (Wally) Amos was born in Florida in 1937. In the 1970s, Wally founded the Famous Amos Chocolate Chip Cookie Corporation. His company did very well. People liked the chocolate chip cookies and people liked how excited Wally was about the cookies he was selling. When Wally was little, his family was very poor. He did not have bus money so he walked 4 miles to school and walked 4 miles back home every day. After his parents got divorced, Amos went to live with his Aunt Dellain New York City. His aunt loved to cook and she always made him special chocolate chip cookies. Wally dropped out of high school to join the army and he earned his high school degree while serving in the army. After he completed his work in the army, he attended secretarial school to learn shorthand, typing, and accounting skills. He worked in the stockroom stocking the shelves of a department store in New York and later in a mailroom in a company. Another job Wally had was to help a famous musician try to get music jobs.

Wally began baking chocolate chip cookies using a recipe similar to his aunt's recipe. He borrowed money from his friends and opened a small shop in California. The Famous Amos Cookie Company started. Soon he began to make money. Within the first two years that the company store was open, he was baking six tons of cookies a week and taking in over $4,000,000 in sales each year. He sold his company to the Bass Brothers of Fort Worth, Texas, and his cookies were soon found in grocery stores and vending machines all across the United States. In 1992, Wally started a new cookie company called The Uncle No name Cookie Company that made five different kinds of cookies. Each bag of cookies also had a recipe for lemonade on the bag. He added this recipe to the cookie bag because Wally wanted his customers to know that, "...if life hands them a lemon, they can turn it into lemonade". This expression means that if things happen that seem not to be so good at the time that later these things can actually turn into something good. Then Wally Amos rejoined the first cookie company to work on sales. He wanted the Famous Amos Cookie Company to return to the market. He also wanted this company to sell some new flavors of cookies besides the popular chocolate chip cookie, to add graphics to the packaging, and to work on new national advertising to attract more customers. Wally has spent time as a literacy volunteer of America and he has given money to a special program called "Cities in Schools" which helps students stay in school. Wally Amos is best known for his enjoyment in making cookies and for making so many possibilities out of his life.
